

Comments in Response to N2021-1

I write to encourage the PRB to reject the proposed plan. An analysis of the plan indicates that it will increase the delivery time for first-class mail for a significant number of Americans. It appears to be designed to kill the Postal Service through attrition, not improve it. The people depend upon the Postal Service for the delivery of their personal correspondence, medications, financial documents, and more.

You will have plenty of detailed analysis from experts that I need not repeat here. I simply write to let you know that this average American strenuously objects to the plan.

The Postal Service has issues, but this plan is not the answer.
